

Capstone Project - The Battle of Neighborhoods

(Week 1)

INTRODUCTION

To have a better understanding of the neighborhoods is always an important task during one's decision making, no matter it's about settling down in a new place or considering open a new business in a city you've lived for many years. You will benefit from the deep insights regarding these in both short term and longer term.

With the rapid development of new technology and tools, as well as more and more data available to the public, there's a lot you can do to. For this project, I'm choosing a topic of finding the right district in a city to buy a house or apartment, as many of us might really consider this in the future, or already did so. And Chicago is the city I want to start my research with.

